Tempers Flare as Candidates Get Personal

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Winthrop Rockefeller met again Monday and they showed that campaign tempers have tightened since their friendly television debate two weeks ago.

They still exchanged pleasantries but the needles had become rapier when they tied into one another.

Faubus sat and smiled as Rockefeller complained about his "low" campaign tactics before the Greater Little Rock Ministerial Alliance.

He then surprised Rockefeller and the ministers by making a speech that was clear of politics until he stuck in at the end an assertion that a political nadir should meet the qualifications of a Baptist deacon—that he should "have one wife and not love whisky."

This caused Rockefeller supporters in the audience to wince and Rockefeller was pressed to maintain his composure a few minutes later when the Rev. M. L. Moser Jr. asked during a question and answer session about Mrs. Rockefeller's divorce.

The question brought a cry of complaint from the ministers, but Rockefeller gamely took the microphone and said his wife had been divorced three times.

Moser then asked if Rockefeller had been divorced and Rockefeller snapped, "It is well known that I have been divorced."

Later in the day the Rev. Sam Allen, executive secretary of Arkansas Council of Churches and a member of the alliance issued a statement saying that Moser was not a member and that his question had no place in the political campaign.

The questioners didn't spare Faubus either. Marjorie Davis, a Negro, asked if he did not consider the 1957 Little Rock integration crisis as a blemish on his record.

Hawkins said in a telegram to Acting Atty. Gen. Nicholas deB Katzenbach that he had evidence that election irregularities "which will constitute violation of the election laws" will be attempted by his political opposition and by those who oppose Gov. (Orval E.) Faubus.

"Since both the governor and I have opponents in the general election on Nov. 3, I cannot adequately police the polls and I cannot ask the governor to send in the State Police without some embarrassment to him," Hawkins wrote.

"For these reasons, since this is a general election which involves candidates for federal office as well as state and county, I request you to send FBI agents to Conway County on Nov. 3 to help guarantee the people of this county the same kind of properly and legally conducted elections we have always had in this county."

Nationally, 6,232,058 bales have been ginned this year, compared to 7,910,253 in 1963. Arkansas has a late cotton crop this year, because of weather conditions.

Barry Says President Is Power Mad

By WALTER R. MEARS

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater accused President Johnson today of playing upon questions of race, religion and hardship in America in his drive to keep the White House.

The Republican presidential candidate said Johnson wants an election-day mandate to set the nation on what he called a plunge to socialistic ruin.

"He won't be satisfied with just an election — he wants to be crowned," the Arizona senator said. "He wants total trust, total love, total power over your lives."

Johnson is the "most powerful hungry man in American politics," Goldwater said in a speech prepared for delivery in Bristol.

He hopped into the South, with London, Ky., also on his schedule, after a wild, full-house rally in New York's Madison Square Garden.

There — before a crowd of more than 18,000 that cheered 28 minutes before he could start his speech — Goldwater accused Johnson of "political daddysm" as old as demagogues and despotism.

It was more of the same today in traditionally Republican eastern Tennessee.

"Somebody," Goldwater said, "and it's got to be you, must tell this man who uses race, who uses religion, who uses hardships, who uses everything and everybody to further his political ambitions — somebody must tell him that American votes cannot be bought, cannot be coerced and will not be hijacked."

A self-styled underdog in the election a week away, Goldwater asked Tennessee voters: "Do we want raw and naked power and ambition in the White House? Power stripped of humility, stripped of common honesty, devoid of any morality except the morality of get, the morality of grab, and the morality of gifts for the favored few?"

Goldwater said Johnson's "course is too far left."

"It would lead to a socialist America," he said. "Perhaps presided over by Lyndon Johnson's handpicked successor,"

Some Remarks From Little Woman Makes a Husband Wish He Was a Bachelor

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Wifely remarks that make a husband wish he were a bachelor: "I don't see why you need more than $1 for lunch."

"Jean's husband makes $25 more a week than you do, and he's no smarter than you are — or not that much more, anyway."

"We're just having scraps for dinner tonight, dear. I didn't feel very hungry."

"Other husbands I know love to discuss the office with their wives. Why don't you? What goes on there that you don't want me to know about?"

"Some evening I'm going to make a recording of how you talk after you've had three martinis, and play it back to you the next morning. It'll make you cringe."

"Is that a blonde hair on your coat? I thought you told me your secretary was a brunette? Not that I'm jealous. Me jealous? Ha, ha, ha."

"I took Emily to the orthodontist today. He says that for $1,200 he can make her teeth look like a movie star's."

"Other husbands I know love to take their wives dancing. So why do you have to be so different?"

"The television set is on the blink again. I think it'll cost at least $50 to have it fixed. Don't you think it would be more economical to buy a new one?"

Mrs. Johnson to Visit Two State Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

People in Arkansas' two largest cities have a chance to see the first lady today as Mrs. Lyndon Johnson makes a flying whistle stop tour through the state.

The "Lady Bird Special," an Electra turboprop plane touches down first in the state at Fort Smith, where the President's wife will take part in the dedication of Belle Point Park as part of the National Park System.

The Fort Smith ceremony is set for about 2:30 p.m.

Her plane then whisks Mrs. Johnson and the wives of three cabinet members to Little Rock, where Mrs. Johnson will dedicate the site of a home for retired teachers. The plane is scheduled to land in the capital city at 3:45 p.m.

Mrs. Annie Ray, 69, wife of John A. Ray, died Saturday at her home at McCaskill. She was a member of First Christian Church of Blevins.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, Jack A. Ray of Ft. Sill, Okla., Robert W. Ray of Germany; three daughters, Mrs. Annie Jean Cogdell of Fresno, Calif., Mrs. Murle Morrow of McCaskill and Mrs. Ruth Kin of Dallas; three brothers, Herbert, Parker and Harry Rike, all of St. Louis; and a sister, Mrs. Mary Mulkey of Little Rock.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Avery's Chapel Methodist Church near McCaskill by the Rev. Bruce Bean. Burial will be in Avery's Chapel Cemetery by Latimer Funeral Service of Nashville.

Jobless Man Held as Gang Leader

ATLANTA (AP) — An Atlanta man who said he could not obtain work because of a speech impediment has been charged with leading a three-man robbery gang which terrorized grocery stores here for five months.

"Every time I went anywhere people laughed at the way I talk," Thomas Benjamin Carter, 25, told police Monday.

Detectives said Carter, who stutters badly, and Walter Jones, 27, and Jessie Lee Byrum, 30, had admitted 10 armed robberies of grocery stores and one attempted robbery.

B. J. Ellis Outstanding Tree Farmer

B. J. Ellis, Emmet, was named Hempstead County's outstanding tree farmer in a ceremony at the Southwest Branch Experiment Station, Hope, on Oct. 23.

More than 95 persons were on hand for the presentation of awards to the outstanding tree farmers of 12 southwest Arkansas counties. The program was held during the experiment station's forestry study day. Cecil Bittle, director of the station, held the study day in observance of National Products Week.

Ellis and the other county winners received their awards from John Collis, El Dorado, chairman of the Arkansas Tree Farm Committee, and C. B. Barnes, Umpire, Dist IV chairman. The committee is sponsored by privately owned, wood-using industries in the state as part of a nationwide program. Its purpose is to recognize and encourage farmers who are managing their timberlands to assure the production of a continuous supply of wood. Such management also provides habitat for wildlife, watershed stabilization, recreational opportunities and protection of Arkansas' forests from fire and other hazards.

C. C. Adams, Camden, was named Outstanding Tree Farmer of Arkansas Tree Farm District IV, which includes Hempstead County. Almost 100 members of the Columbia County Landowners' Assn. were notified of their certification as members of the American Tree Farm System. They will receive green and white Tree Farm signs for display on their timberlands.

Why is it you men don't like to take your wives along when you go fishing? If you ask, my opinion, you all act like a bunch of heathen savages.

"Put down that newspaper. There's something I want to tell you — right now."

"Guess what day this is."

"You're going to have to do something about those children. Before you lie down on the sofa, let me tell you what they were up to today."

"Well, I might as well tell you the bad news now. The refrigerator collapsed today. But after all, we've had it for 14 years. I guess we'll have to buy a new one."

"I get so tired of living in this same old house that I could scream."

"You never heard a single word I said. For the matter, you never do."

"I don't expect you to be perfect. But I do expect you to show a little consideration when —"

"How do I know you really love me, when you so rarely say it? Do you think I'm a mental telepathist?"

"I hate to call you at the office, dear, but on the way home I'd like you to stop off at the supermarket and get a few items I forgot. I'll read you the list."

LBJ Lectures Hecklers in Deep South

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson aims his campaign at the Northeast today after a swing through the Deep South in which he lectured hecklers, assailed Barry Goldwater by name and promised to seek an end to North-South differences.

Johnson, who is making more and more direct jabs at Goldwater with the election only a week away, speaks tonight in Boston, Pittsburgh and Evansville, Ind., before flying to Albuquerque, N.M., for an overnight stay.

The President stumped through five cities in Florida, Georgia and South Carolina, Monday. Returning to the White House long after dark, he obviously was pleased about his reception in the South — even though he was confronted in Augusta, Ga., with the most severe heckling of his campaign.

Interrupted several times at Augusta by chants of "We want Barry," Johnson left his preparation.

Charge in Vote Fuss Dismissed

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — Forrest City Municipal Judge O. L. Hargraves dismissed Monday a disorderly conduct charge against Dr. Reese Phillips, a Forrest City veterinarian.

Reese and A.D. Nuckols were arrested on the charges Friday after they attempted to enter a meeting of the St. Francis County Election Commission while it was in executive session.

Hargraves told the prosecution, and attorneys for Nuckols, to submit briefs in the case by Nov. 10.

Phillips and Nuckols were charged on affidavits filed by Charles Adams and Sam Ashworth, Democratic members of the election commission.

Phillips and Nuckols said they attempted to enter the meeting on the basis of a 1953 state law forbidding executive sessions of any state, county or municipal commission unless it was considering the hiring or firing of an employee.

Mrs. Annie Ray, 69, wife of John A. Ray, died Saturday at her home at McCaskill. She was a member of First Christian Church of Blevins.

School Suit Refused by U.S. Judge

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — U.S. District Judge Gordon Young refused Monday to allow a reopening of the Old Little Rock school desegregation lawsuit to test the state pupil assignment law.

Young ruled that a new lawsuit should be filed by five Negro pupils, whose parents wanted to test the assignment law, and the alleged failure of the Little Rock School Board to assign students and faculty members without regard to race.

Conway Co. Jury Indicts Top Aide of Rockefeller

MORRILTON, Ark. (AP) —

The Conway County Grand Jury has indicted Everett A. Ham Jr., a top aide to Republican gubernatorial candidate Winthrop Rockefeller, for perjury, it was learned today.

Pulaski County Deputy Sheriff Sam Hallum said he had a warrant for Ham's arrest on the indictment from Conway County.

Ham has testified before the grand jury in the jury's investigation of the feud between Conway County Sheriff Martin Hawkins and former Morrilton newspaper editor Gene Wirges.

The Ham indictment was handed down by the grand jury Monday. A partial report made by the grand jury Monday still had not been made public today. The jury was still in session.

The exact nature of the charge was not known immediately.

Ham has been a top aide to Rockefeller for several years.

Wirges got out of jail Monday after testifying before the grand jury, which is investigating the possibility of a conspiracy against Sheriff Martin Hawkins.

Wirges was jailed last Thursday by Circuit Judge Wiley Bean for contempt of court.

Bean said Wirges refused to testify before the grand jury.

In other actions Monday: Two jurors, Alva Edgar and A. A. Driver, reportedly had heart attacks Monday and were replaced by alternate jurors, Ferrell Bradshaw and W.O. Byrd.

—Bean told Wirges he would petition the state Supreme Court to order him (Bean) to dismiss a case now on appeal in which Bean cited Wirges for contempt of court on Nov. 2, 1963.

—Bean told Wirges' lawyer, Thorp Thomas of Little Rock, that he would grant a request for a change of venue on any trials before him which might directly involve Wirges.

—Thomas said he would appeal to the state Supreme Court Bean's dismissal of two cases involving warrants sworn by two justices of the peace against Hawkins.

Wirges' lawyers had appealed the jailing, but the state Supreme Court ruled Friday that Wirges had failed to show that he was improperly jailed. Bean said the only way Wirges could purge himself of contempt was by testifying.

Wirges testified Monday for about 30 minutes. Since grand jury proceedings are secret, it was not known what he was asked or how he answered.

Besides returning the indictment, the jury made a partial report of its investigation but this was not made public.

Thomas said Wirges did not invoke the 5th Amendment during his testimony because he did not have to. He said that before testimony began, Bean told prosecutor Jeff Mobley not to ask questions pertaining to the record of his administration. Faubus said he did not and explained that he did not close schools against integration until patrons of the Little Rock School District voted 3-1 in favor of such action.

Another Negro asked Faubus about a remark, made earlier in the campaign at McGehee that racial demonstrators should be run over. Faubus admitted again that the remark was "inept" and that he made it to emphasize that he intends to enforce the law and will not allow demonstrators to bully police.

Faubus was asked if he can keep casinos at Hot Springs closed if an amendment to legalize gambling in Garland County is defeated Nov. 3.

"Yes," Faubus said, adding, "And I will." It was his strongest statement on the issue to date.

The candidates were asked to speak for 20 minutes each on the relation between the church and politics. Rockefeller, using a prepared text, spent about 10 minutes criticizing Faubus' campaign tactics and answering charges Faubus has made on the trail.

Faubus sat less than three feet away and grinned as Rockefeller said Faubus sank to a "new low" in charging that Rockefeller employees had wrecked a graveyard in Lonoke County. He called the charge a "flat lie."

Rockefeller said the governor's campaign had included "a flow of tragically warped, insinuating and sometimes disgusting material through the mails and by word of mouth."

He then said the church "with all its powers of moral persuasion can and should have a marked effect on the morality and the manners to be used in campaigns."

The governor said that the church as a body should not get involved in politics but that church members as individuals should.

He complained that too many persons are quick to criticize a public official when he makes a mistake and are slow to commend him when he does well.

Both men were asked about their church affiliations. Rockefeller said he was baptized in the Park Avenue Baptist Church in New York and that he had never transferred his membership to Arkansas.

Faubus said he was baptized in a Baptist Church at Hindsville, moved his membership to the First Baptist Church in Huntsville when he moved there and to the First Baptist Church in Little Rock when he became governor.

Faubus said he attends Sunday services about 50 per cent of the time. Rockefeller said he attends "irregularly" but that he gets "great spiritual benefit from meditation and reading of prayer in the mornings."

ed text to do some off-the-cuff sermonizing on good manners.

He said: "I was always taught as a little by when people didn't know any better, and when they were rude, and when they didn't show good manners, to turn your other cheek and say, 'Dear Lord, please forgive them for they know not what they do.'"

Johnson, who smiled through much of the opposition chanting, insisted he didn't feel hurt or angry.

"We just feel sorry," he said. And I think that on Nov. 3 they are going to feel sorry, too."

Earlier, in Macon, Ga., Johnson faced similar but less noisy people in demonstrations that included the waving of out-spoken and anti-Johnson placards.

There he said: "Some people like to write signs about individuals. And I guess I would do that, too, if I didn't have any issues to talk about. But we do have issues."

The President, who only recently has begun to take direct pokes at Goldwater, did so several times Monday.

At Macon, he mentioned half a dozen votes taken when the was Senate Democratic leader on proposals to increase defense spending.

After each citation, he shouted: "Goldwater voted no and I voted aye."

Johnson suggested that voters judge Goldwater by his deeds rather than his words.

From the President's standpoint the high point of the day's journey came at Columbia, S.C., where a police-estimated crowd of 60,000 to 70,000 assembled outside the Capitol building of that politically uncertain state to cheer him.

There were few Goldwater sings in the crowd at Columbia, there was no heckling, and the partisan audience roared its approval of Johnson's words.

Again the chief executive slapped directly at Goldwater, saying his opponent "offers a policy of brinkmanship with nuclear power."

In there, four Southern States Johnson visited, top-ranking Democratic officeholders — with the exception of Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia — turned out, as the President put it, "to stand up with me and be counted."

Everywhere in the South, Johnson emphasized a pledge to work, if elected, to erase sectional differences and to lift from the South burdens which he said that region has borne for 100 years — ever since the Civil War.

As he told his listeners in Macon, he believes the election returns will show the nation and the world "that in this land of the free, there is no North, no South, no East, no West."

In almost every speech, he repeated this message:

"One hundred years is long enough to burden down our future with the divisions of the past. The time has come — the time is now — to bind up our wounds, heal our history and make this nation whole."

cord "unmatched by any other state."

Mills asked "When has the state moved more than it has during the last two years under Gov. Faubus?" He predicted that Arkansians would not cast that aside and "shop in strange territory."

Fulbright said the question in the Nov. 3 presidential election is whether the South will "cut off its nose to spite its face."

He said Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee, is pledged to enforcement of the Civil Rights Act, although he voted against it.

Parachutist Lands in a Pond, Drowns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 24-year-old Pine Bluff man parachuting with two other men drowned Sunday when he landed in a small pond near Pine Bluff's municipal airport.

Rick Gray, who had made more than 50 jumps, was unable to maneuver away from the water. He wore a life preserver, but it was not inflated.

Five persons were accidentally killed in Arkansas during the period from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday, an Associated Press count shows.

Three died in traffic accidents, one drowned and one was shot on a hunting trip.

Gray, formerly of Blytheville, started his jump from 7,500 feet. A witness said he came up after he hit the pond and called for help, but by the time rescuers got there he had gone under. They pulled him from the 8-foot waters by the parachute.

No Surprises Up Sleeve, Barry Says

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater says he has no big surprises up his sleeve and plans no major speedup in his vote-hunting pace in the final week of his campaign.

The Republican presidential nominee will journey to 16 states in the final days of his challenge to President Johnson. He opens the week's tour today in Salisbury, Md., in an area that leaned heavily toward mile east of Star City and hit a tree. Curtis was a Negro.

Bobby Malone, 15, of De Witt was killed Saturday while returning from a hunting trip with 14-year-old L. C. Mayall, also of De Witt. Mayall told a coroner that his shotgun discharged as he and young Malone were walking along a woods trail about three miles northeast of De Witt.

B. D. Hale, 53, of Gravelly in Yell County, died when his car hit a bridge just west of Gravelly.

Experience Is Not Infallible

WASHINGTON (AP)—At 97,

Peter M. Lue Rutz has discovered that even 60 years experience is not an infallible teacher.

So now he is heading for traffic school.

Sixty years ago, Lue Rutz first drove a car — a two-cylinder Oldsmobile. He took it over the Michigan roads in 1904 at three miles an hour. He has been driving ever since.

Earlier this month, Lue Rutz swung in front of another car and tried to make a right turn.

The cars collided, and Lue Rutz had to come to a hearing Monday in the Court of General Sessions.

"I thought I had room to make the turn," Lue Rutz testified. Chief Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King decided some schooling was in order, and Lue Rutz agreed to go to traffic school.

"He's without doubt the oldest ever to go," King said.

Goldwater will spend Thursday on a whistle-stop tour from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh, Pa.

Friday, he will be in Cheyenne, Wyo.; Las Vegas, Nev.; Tucson, Ariz.; and Los Angeles.

It's time for TRUTH and HONOR in this campaign

In his efforts to hold power forever over the people of Arkansas with his political machine, Governor Faubus has distorted many facts. He has reached into the mud for false smear material, and has even held a meeting of ministers at the governor's mansion where he gave them false information in the hopes that the smear of Win Rockefeller would be carried on from the pulpits of Arkansas churches.

There is neither time nor space to set every fact straight and to get this campaign back on the issues. But here are a few of the worst below-the-belt falsehoods, and the real facts.

FICTION

Rockefeller has an army of paid workers in his campaign.

Rockefeller owns a gambling casino in Puerto Rico.

Rockefeller is spending lavishly on TV.

Rockefeller has never had a haircut in Arkansas.

There are lavish drunken parties at Winrock.

Rockefeller was in collusion — and in contact — with Eisenhower in advance of the 1957 Little Rock crisis.

It is our belief that the people of Arkansas are sick and tired of the false smears that have been made — and are yet to be made — upon Win Rockefeller and his family. Democrats by the tens of thousands are revolted and ashamed that a man of great character and known accomplishment can be so falsely defamed and assaulted by a person who has not kept his word to the voters and who rules our State with the only two weapons at his command — terror and smear.

In simple justice to your State, your Country and your party, we ask you to join in the revolt which will rid our gracious land of this arrogant Governor.

FACT

Rockefeller has about 100 paid staff workers and about 12,000 volunteers in this gigantic effort to upset an arrogant political machine. Salaries are paid through contributions to the campaign. Faubus is using thousands of state employees at least part-time in his campaign and these people are paid with your tax dollars. Every campaign needs paid help. The only question is, who pays them?

Rockefeller does not now, never has, and never will own a gambling casino nor any part of one, in Puerto Rico, nor anywhere else. This Faubus campaign statement is a falsehood.

Rockefeller will have about 3 hours of TV time plus some spot announcements. Governor Faubus can have equal time, and he is already using a TV film reportedly prepared by the Arkansas Parks & Publicity Commission and paid for by you, the taxpayer. No money being used by the Rockefeller campaign has been extracted from the taxpayer.

How silly can you get? This statement is completely false.

Only normal and occasional entertainment goes on at Winrock. Many prominent civic and business leaders have been entertained there from time to time, often in the best interests of Arkansas. Many members of the legislature and Governor Orval E. Faubus himself have drunk whiskey at Winrock.

A complete falsehood.

I will attend the annual Spring Fashion Market to be held October 25-30 in Dallas.

During this Market, buyers from all over the Southwest select spring fashions from over 3,000 lines, shown at the Merchandise Mart, assuring their customers of up-to-the-minute fashion-right apparel.

Sponsored by National Fashion Exhibitors of America, The American Fashion Association, will be showing at the new Apparel Mart which has just been completed, Dallas Markets are one of the top three fashion markets in the nation. Four major markets are held there annually, with the October market featuring clothing and casual wear for the spring season. Merchandise selected at this market will be on sale in retail stores in late winter and early spring.

The Dallas Market, normally held in advance of New York and West Coast markets, is one of the most complete fashion displays in the nation. Many manufacturers use it to test acceptance of new designs before major production on a style has begun. The general feeling is that if a new item is well accepted in Dallas, it will be a success all across the nation. Southwestern buyers literally set the national pace.

In addition to many lines of high fashion coats, suits and casual ensembles, jewelry, accessories and lingerie will be displayed during the Spring Fashion Market.

But you don't have to wait until late winter or early spring to see the newest in fashions, they are available any season of the year.

A program on Ludwig Van Beethoven was heard at the Friday Music Club October 23 in the home of Mrs. Thomas E. Hays, Jr. Fall chrysanthemums decorated the home.

Master Bob Frazier and Mrs. George Frazier played a duet, "Chop Sticks," a piece which even Beethoven had probably once played. Carol Frazier and Mrs. Frazier performed a "pre-Beethoven" piano duet. Tommy Frazier told some interesting facts about the composer's life and played a melody from one of his symphonies.

Duet arrangements of the familiar "Minuet in G" and "Turkish Melody" were played by Mrs. Frazier and Mrs. B. C. Hyatt, and Mrs. Hyatt performed major portions of a Beethoven sonata. Mrs. Roy Stephenson concluded the program with a few facts about "Joyful, Joyful We Adore Thee," a hymn by Beethoven, and all joined in singing it.

Editor the Star: Note the following copy of a letter I have written to Mrs. Marjorie Butler.

Hope, Rt. 1:
Mrs. Marjorie Butler
Route 1
Hope, Arkansas

Dear Mrs. Butler:
I noted with interest your letter to the Hope Star about our street conditions. We appreciate your kind comments on the maintenance program we have done this summer. This is the most extensive maintenance program that has ever been done during any one year. We are hoping for a like amount of work next year, which will be needed to keep our old paved streets from further deteriorating.

I quite agree with you on the need for paving 4th street. It is terrible to have conditions like that so close to the downtown section. There are several others of equal importance and we do need some through streets in the southside of town.

The only method of financing the paving of city streets is by assessing the cost to the property owners. This is usually done by the formation of an improvement district covering the area desiring the improvement. This takes the approval of two-thirds of all properties in the proposed district. With this approval, the work can be done and the cost assessed to the property owners. There have been some 35 or 40 paving improvement districts formed during the past years, and several sewer improvement districts. One of our problems now is that the type streets put in were expensive to begin with and create a maintenance problem that is hard to cope with.

We have done some street work where the property owners would get together and pay for the paving without all of the legal complications of an improvement district. Right now, the city will pave any street or block, or even a half-block, where the property owners will pay for the out-of-pocket costs, with nothing figured for machinery or operators. In this way the city is sharing some of the costs with the property owners. Most of our street money used in this way, however, is badly needed for maintenance work. Out of our street money we do gravel all the streets, and this together with our maintenance expense takes all the street money we can get hold of.

You will probably recall our recent attempt to pave the streets in the southeast section of the city. We had obtained funds to account for 60 percent of the cost, and the balance would have to be assessed to the property owners. This program included complete storm sewers, concrete curb and gutter and a heavy gravel base. This type of street would carry heavy traffic and would have required only a minimum of maintenance. Needless to say, the City Directors were sad when we had to turn back a $250,000 grant to the Federal Government because we were unable to get the consent of two-thirds of the properties necessary to form an improvement district, which was the only available method of financing the remaining 40 percent of the total cost.

Hope needs good streets and must have them if we are ever to have the kind of a community a lot of us would like. The street you mentioned, and several other very important streets have never had a majority of people willing to pave, even with the assistance the City will offer. There is no way we can force them to pave. Some residents in most all of these areas have at one time or another tried to get their neighbors to form an improvement district so they could force the remaining owners. Several of these are

Clark Co. Official Killed in Wreck

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—James M. Modlin, 58, of Arkadelphia was fatally injured Monday night when he was hit by a car on Interstate 30 just south of here.

He and three other Arkadelphia residents had been in a car involved in a minor wreck and they had gotten out to wave traffic around. They were going to the state wide Democratic rally here.

Modlin was Clark County Circuit Clerk.

State Police said the driver of the car which hit Modlin was Capt. Clarence W. Troutman, 34, of Little Rock Air Force Base.

Modlin had been with James T. Gooch, Roy Neil Moorman and J. Hugh Lookadoo, all prominent Democrats.

Hoover Was for Self Reliance

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two contradictions he revealed in his most critical moment would be enough to make President Hoover a fascinating figure in American history.

He had seen and been a part of the government in World War II when, to survive and win, it went all-out in using its resources and controls.

But — as president in the depression he stopped far short of going all-out in meeting the crisis which threatened devastation worse than war.

He organized and distributed relief for millions overseas during and after World War I.

But — as President he would not give direct government help to the needy in the American depression. Why? The answer is in his philosophy.

He preached self-reliance, calling it individualism. He thought all men should have equal opportunity for happiness and fulfillment.

This, he felt, required a minimum of interference by the government or dependence on it.

It was the dominant view in the 19th century in which he grew up. It was not his own philosophy. He inherited it.

There was a flaw in it which neither he nor many others ever seemed to perceive: All men, because of differences in birth and circumstances, do not have equal opportunities.

The view was rooted in 18th century France and England where men like Adam Smith felt government controls had become oppressive and were stifling the development of men and nations.

In his "Wealth of Nation" in 1776 Smith became the great spokesman for a minimum of government interference, then let-alone philosophy which swept the Western world.

Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson felt the same way. But Jefferson and Smith and others like them — from before Cicero up till now — were not completely realistic.

They had a mystical belief in a "natural law" — more important than any man-made law to the contrary — that men were not only equal but had a natural being tried at the present time. We certainly try to assist them. We really should be building a much better type street so we would not leave the community with an ever growing maintenance problem. Anyway, I want to commend your interest and solicit your support in trying to develop enough interest to get a good system of streets for Hope. With best personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,
FRANK DOUGLAS

Flood Having Problems With Housing

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — Curt Flood, star center fielder for the world champion St. Louis Cardinals baseball team announced his intention to move into a rented home today despite an alleged threat to stop him with a shotgun.

Flood, who said Monday that he was "upset, but I'm not angry," has the backing of Superior Court Judge Richard Arnason and the sheriff's office.

Flood, 25, charged in a court suit that he and his family were threatened after he signed a lease to rent a suburban home in Alamo, about 15 miles east of Oakland.

The suit, filed in Contra Costa County Superior Court, asked $10,000 in damages plus a restraining order allowing the family to move in. Judge Arnason granted the restraining order.

Defendants in the case are Constance A. Oliver of Zephyr Cove, Nev., owner of the home, and George C. Finn, who allegedly signed the lease after obtaining power of attorney from Mrs. Oliver.

The shotgun threat was made, according to the lawsuit, by Finn after he had signed the lease and later discovered that Flood is a Negro.

right to equal opportunity. This assumption was so prevalent in their time it is hardly a coincidence that in the same year, 1776, Smith wrote his book and Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence.

Without their belief in "natural law" it seems impossible that Smith could have produced the "Wealth of Nations" or Jefferson the Declaration of Independence.

Nor was it odd in a practical way that Jefferson and Jackson wanted limited government. They were living in an early America, mostly agricultural, where people could be and often had to be self-dependent.

There was a different America from this one, heavily industrialized, with most people in cities, and therefore interdependent.

The Jefferson-Jackson view held up to the Civil War and was paralleled in England where Liberals, anxious for freedom in all directions, warred against government involvement or intrusions.

Here the let-alone philosophy took a turn after the Civil War. With industrialization leaping ahead, business got a lot of help, directly or indirectly, from the government and the Supreme Court right up to the depression.

There were other voices, less predominant in the 19th century but infinitely more influential in this one, who talked government responsibility. They had to wait years to be vindicated. Hoover absorbed some of that, too.

It explains why, although he stopped far short of using all the government's resources in the depression, he went further to combat it than any depression president in history.

One example will show the long let-alone tradition in the White House before Hoover ever moved there.

In 1887, when Congress passed a bill to give direct government relief to drought-stricken farmers in Texas, President Cleveland vetoed it, saying: "though the people support the government, the government should not support the people."

Hoover did far more in the way of using government resources after the crash than Cleveland might have thought of, but it was still not enough.

In holding back on direct relief to the needy he was in the main American stream up till then.

"DEAR ABBY"

ONE WOMAN'S SECRET

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I, for one, agree with you 100 per cent when you say that a husband and wife should not tell everything just to clear their own consciences. First of all, it doesn't make the sin any less, so why hurt someone by confessing? A few years ago I became a restless housewife, and thought that an affair with another man was the answer to everything. So, after becoming involved, I became pregnant. That woke me up and I broke off with him without telling him why. Instead, I vowed to be a better wife and mother, and I worked toward that end and prayed daily for forgiveness. We now have a little daughter. My husband worships the ground she walks on, and she idolizes him. We have other children, but there seems to be a closeness between this little girl and her "Daddy" that does not exist between any of the others. So why break his heart by telling him that she is not his child? This secret is between God and me, and it will always be that way.

COULD NEVER TELL

Dear Abby: Of all the despicable people I will ever have to contend with, deliver me from the "kiss and tell" hypocrite. Confessions to clear the conscience? Baloney! Most confessions are motivated by a wilful desire to injure an innocent party, guilt transference, and the wish to boast.

Confession to God is good. Likewise, confession to a clergyman. Even to the bartender or the barber. But never to one who will be hurt to hear it.

To have an affair is one thing. It is wrong, to be sure. But it is a human weakness and the flesh is weak. But to inflict pain on an innocent person, needlessly, is quite another. Christ has been known to forgive the adulterer. ("Go forth, and sin no more.") But Christ had no good message for the hypocrite.

Who am I? I'm the guy who once confessed to his wife his infidelity.

GUILTY

Dear Abby: Re confessing infidelity to one's mate: I agree with you wholeheartedly, Abby. It has been said, "The truth shall set you free." Rubbish! The truth has enslaved me. I would give everything I own never to have heard my wife's "confession." Sign me,

A MAN IN PASADENA

Dear Abby: So now you are giving spiritual advice? Who are you to say that a husband and wife should not confess the sin of unfaithfulness to one another? When one has broken his vid Robinson, leased the $35,000 house to Flood at $290 a month for one year.

Mrs. Scofield took the lease to Finn. He signed it, she said, and later inquired of Mrs. Scofield whether the lessees were Caucasians.

Finn became "very enraged," according to Mrs. Scofield, when she told him that Flood was a Negro.

Finn, accompanied by another man — both armed with shotguns — parked his car across the home's driveway and threatened to shoot any Negro who tried to move in, the suit claimed.

Finn, who with his twin brother, Charles, made news a decade ago in a prolonged legal fight over a surplus airplane they bought, could not be reached for comment.

marriage vows, the only way to wipe the slate clean is to make a full confession to the spouse and ask forgiveness from the wronged one. If my mate has sinned against me, it is to me that he should confess, and it is my forgiveness he needs in order to cleanse his soul. I think you should print a retraction, Abby. Many people read your advice and take you seriously.

"SAVED" IN JOPLIN
Dear Abby: I still believe that a confession that will hurt an innocent party should be withheld. There are better ways to make restitution. Prayer, keeping a silent vow never to repeat the act, a special measure of kindness and consideration when the guilt is born in silence by the guilty one. There is nothing noble about cleansing one's conscience in the tears of another.

The record of his administration. Faubus said he did not and explained that he did not close schools against integration until patrons of the Little Rock School District voted 3-1 in favor of such action.

Another Negro asked Faubus about a remark, made earlier in the campaign at McGhee that racial demonstrators should be run over. Faubus admitted again that the remark was "inept" and that he made it to emphasize that he intends to enforce the law and will not allow demonstrators to bully police.

Faubus was asked if he can keep casinos at Hot Springs closed if an amendment to legalize gambling in Garland County is defeated Nov. 3.

"Yes," Faubus said, adding, "And I will." It was his strongest statement on the issue to date.

The candidates were asked to speak for 20 minutes each on the relation between the church and politics. Rockefeller, using a prepared text, spent about 10 minutes criticizing Faubus' campaign tactics and answering charges Faubus has made on the trail.

Faubus sat less than three feet away and grinned as Rockefeller said Faubus sank to a "new low" in charging that Rockefeller employees had wrecked a graveyard in Lonoke County. He called the charge a "flat lie."

Rockefeller said the governor's campaign had included "a flow of tragically warped, insinuating and sometimes disgusting material through the mails and by word of mouth."

He then said the church "with all its powers of moral persuasion can and should have a marked effect on the morality and the manners to be used in campaigns."

The governor said that the church as a body should not get involved in politics but that church members as individuals should.

He complained that too many persons are quick to criticize a public official when he makes mistakes and are slow to commend him when he does well.

Both men were asked about their church affiliations. Rockefeller said he was baptized in the Park Avenue Baptist Church in New York and that he had never transferred his membership to Arkansas.

Faubus said he was baptized in a Baptist Church at Hindsville, moved his membership to the First Baptist Church in Huntsville when he moved there and to the First Baptist Church in Little Rock when he became governor.

Faubus said he attends Sunday services about 50 per cent of the time. Rockefeller said he attends "irregularly" but that he gets "great spiritual benefit from meditation and reading of prayer in the mornings."

Goldwater added: "The pace of this plunge to socialism, this careening, 90-mile-per hour ride to ruin is a violation of every limit that the majority of Americans want to set."

"On such a ride," he said, "we may never have another chance short of the crack-up which socialism promises and the coddling of communism threatens."

ed text to do some off-the-cuff sermonizing on good manners. He said: "I was always taught as a little boy when people didn't know any better, and when they made mistakes, and when they were rude, and when they didn't show good manners, to turn your other cheek and say, 'Dear Lord, please forgive them for they know not what they do.'"

Johnson, who smiled through much of the opposition chanting, insisted he didn't feel hurt or angry.

"We just feel sorry," he said. And I think that on Nov. 3 they are going to feel sorry, too."

Earlier, in Macon, Ga., Johnson faced similar but less noisy people in demonstrations that included the waving of out-spoken and anti-Johnson placards.

There he said: "Some people like to write signs about individuals. And I guess I would do that, too, if I didn't have any issues to talk about. But we do have issues."

The President, who only recently has begun to take direct pokes at Goldwater, did so several times Monday.

At Macon, he mentioned half a dozen votes taken when the Senate Democratic leader on proposals to increase defense spending.

After each citation, he shouted: "Goldwater voted no and I voted aye."

Johnson suggested that voters judge Goldwater by his deeds rather than his words.

From the President's standpoint the high point of the day's journey came at Columbia, S.C., where a police-estimated crowd of 60,000 to 70,000 assembled outside the Capitol building of that politically uncertain state to cheer him.

There were few Goldwater sings in the crowd at Columbia, there was no heckling, and the partisan audience roared its approval of Johnson's words.

Again the chief executive slapped directly at Goldwater, saying his opponent "offers a policy of brinkmanship with nuclear power."

In there, four Southern States Johnson visited, top-ranking Democratic officeholders — with the exception of Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia — turned out, as the President put it, "to stand up with me and be counted."

Everywhere in the South, Johnson emphasized a pledge to work, if elected, to erase sectional differences and "to lift from the South burdens which he said that region has borne for 100 years — ever since the Civil War."

As he told his listeners in Macon, he believes the election returns will show the nation and the world "that in this land of he free, there is no North, no South, no East, no West."

In almost every speech, he repeated this message: "One hundred years is long enough to burden down our future with the divisions of the past. The time has come — the time is now — to bind up our wounds, heal our history and make this nation whole."

cord "unmatched by any other state."

Mills asked "When has the state moved more than it has during the last two years under Gv. Faubus?" He predicted that Arkansans would not cast that aside and "shop in strange territory."

Fulbright said the question in the Nov. 3 presidential election is whether the South will "cut off its nose to spite its face."

He said Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee, is pledged to enforcement of the Civil Rights Act, although he voted against it.

Star City's complete water supply was furnished for many years by 6 springs located west of the town.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., spoke for the national ticket. He called President Johnson a man of "long experience, high ability and proven competence in the affairs of government."

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and the state's four U.S. representatives, Oren Harris, E. C. Gathings, Wilbur Mills and James Trimble, also spoke. Each urged the election of every Democratic candidate.

McClellan said the state government had reduced its debt 60 per cent under Faubus, a re-

A 24-year-old Pine Bluff man parachuting with two other men drowned Sunday when he landed in a small pond near Pine Bluff's municipal airport.

Rick Gray, who had made more than 50 jumps, was unable to maneuver away from the water. He wore a life preserver, but it was not inflated.

Five persons were accidentally killed in Arkansas during the period from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday, an Associated Press count shows.

Three died in traffic accidents, one drowned and one was shot on a hunting trip.

Gray, formerly of Blytheville, started his jump from 7,500 feet. A witness said he came up after he hit the pond and called for help, but by the time rescuers got there he had gone under.

They pulled him from the 8-foot waters by the parachute.

No Surprises Up Sleeve, Barry Says

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater says he has no big surprises up his sleeve and plans no major speedup in his vote-hunting pace in the final week of his campaign.

The Republican presidential nominee will journey to 16 states in the final days of his challenge to President Johnson.

He opens the week's tour today in Salisbury, Md., in an area that leaned heavily toward mile east of Star City and hit a tree. Curtis was a Negro.

Bobby Malone, 15, of De Witt was killed Saturday while returning from a hunting trip with 14-year-old L. C. Mayall, also of De Witt. Mayall told a coroner that he and young Malone were walking along a woods trail about three miles northeast of De Witt.

B. D. Hale, 53, of Gravelly in Yell County, died when his car hit a bridge just west of Gravelly.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in the Maryland primary election last May.

After a stop in Dover, Del., Goldwater moves on to New York City, where his schedule sets aside nearly six hours for staff conferences and dinner.

Tonight, he will address a rally in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Goldwater traveled to West Branch, Iowa, Sunday for the burial of former President Herbert Hoover. He flew out from Washington with the Hoover family, and returned aboard his campaign jet.

On the way back to the capital, Goldwater, who does not campaign on Sunday, worked on his New York speech.

He told newsmen he will stick to the basic issues of his campaign in its final days. Goldwater has been calling for a tougher stance in foreign policy, for curtailment of the size and power of the federal government and for a drive against what he calls a wave of lawlessness and immorality.

Goldwater's campaign will take him to Bristol, Tenn.; London, Ky.; and Cleveland, Ohio Tuesday.

On Wednesday, he will carry his campaign to Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Oshkosh, Wis.; and East

Experience Is Not Infallible

WASHINGTON (AP)—At 97, Peter M. Lue Rutz has discovered that even 60 years experience is not an infallible teacher. So now he is heading for traffic school.

Sixty years ago, Lue Rutz first drove a car — a two-cylinder Oldsmobile. He took it over the Michigan roads in 1904 at three miles an hour. He has been driving ever since.

Earlier this month, Lue Rutz swung in front of another car and tried to make a right turn. The cars collided, and Lue Rutz had to come to a hearing Monday in the Court of General Sessions.

"I thought I had room to make the turn," Lue Rutz testified. Chief Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King decided some schooling was in order, and Lue Rutz agreed to go to traffic school.

"He's without doubt the oldest ever to go," King said.

St. Louis, Ill. Goldwater will spend Thursday on a whistle-stop tour from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh, Pa.

Friday, he will be in Cheyenne, Wyo.; Las Vegas, Nev.; Tucson, Ariz.; and Los Angeles.

Bean called the grand jury last Tuesday to investigate possible conspiracy against Hawkins, possible anarchy and possible usurpation of the power of the court.

Bean criticized Wigres from the bench for pressing what he called a crusade against the Conway County government that he said brought bad publicity and bad feelings to the county.

He also criticized Republican gubernatorial nominee Winthrop Rockefeller for financing Wigres' investigation of what Wigres calls irregularities in the operation of the sheriff's office. The two warrants thrown out by Bean involved affidavits sworn out in connection with two drunk driving arrests made by Hawkins and fines paid to the sheriff's office.

The grand jury cleared Hawkins of misconduct at the same time it indicted Wigres.

It's time for TRUTH and HONOR in this campaign

In his efforts to hold power forever over the people of Arkansas with his political machine, Governor Faubus has distorted many facts. He has reached into the mud for false smear material, and has even held a meeting of ministers at the governor's mansion where he gave them false information in the hopes that the smear of Win Rockefeller would be carried on from the pulpits of Arkansas churches.

There is neither time nor space to set every fact straight and to get this campaign back on the issues. But here are a few of the worst below-the-belt falsehoods, and the real facts.

FICTION

Rockefeller has an army of paid workers in his campaign.

Rockefeller owns a gambling casino in Puerto Rico.

Rockefeller is spending lavishly on TV.

Rockefeller has never had a haircut in Arkansas.

There are lavish drunken parties at Winrock.

Rockefeller was in collusion — and in contact — with Eisenhower in advance of the 1957 Little Rock crisis.

It is our belief that the people of Arkansas are sick and tired of the false smears that have been made — and are yet to be made — upon Win Rockefeller and his family. Democrats by the tens of thousands are revolted and ashamed that a man of great character and known accomplishment can be so falsely defamed and assaulted by a person who has not kept his word to the voters and who rules our State with the only two weapons at his command — terror and smear.

In simple justice to your State, your Country and your party, we ask you to join in the revolt which will rid our gracious land of this arrogant Governor.

FACT

Rockefeller has about 100 paid staff workers and about 12,000 volunteers in this gigantic effort to upset an arrogant political machine. Salaries are paid through contributions to the campaign. Faubus is using thousands of state employees at least part-time in his campaign and these people are paid with your tax dollars. Every campaign needs paid help. The only question is, who pays them?

Rockefeller does not now, never has, and never will own a gambling casino nor any part of one, in Puerto Rico, nor anywhere else. This Faubus campaign statement is a falsehood.

Rockefeller will have about 3 hours of TV time plus some spot announcements. Governor Faubus can have equal time, and he is already using a TV film reportedly prepared by the Arkansas Parks & Publicity Commission and paid for by you, the taxpayer. No money being used by the Rockefeller campaign has been extracted from the taxpayer.

How silly can you get? This statement is completely false.

Only normal and occasional entertainment goes on at Winrock. Many prominent civic and business leaders have been entertained there from time to time, often in the best interests of Arkansas. Many members of the legislature and Governor Orval E. Faubus himself have drunk whiskey at Winrock.

A complete falsehood.

I will attend the annual Spring Fashion Market to be held October 25-30 in Dallas.

During this Market, buyers from all over the Southwest select spring fashions from over 3,000 lines, shown at the Merchandise Mart, assuring their customers of up-to-the-minute fashion-right apparel.

Sponsored by National Fashion Exhibitors of America, The American Fashion Association, will be showing at the new Apparel Mart which has just been completed. Dallas Markets are one of the top three fashion markets in the nation. Four major markets are held there annually, with the October market featuring clothing and casual wear for the spring season. Merchandise selected at this market will be on sale in retail stores in late winter and early spring.

The Dallas Market, normally held in advance of New York and West Coast markets, is one of the most complete fashion displays in the nation. Many manufacturers use it to test acceptance of new designs before major production on a style has begun. The general feeling is that if a new item is well accepted in Dallas, it will be a success all across the nation. Southwestern buyers literally set the national pace.

In addition to many lines of high fashion coats, suits and casual ensembles, jewelry, accessories and lingerie will be displayed during the Spring Fashion Market.

But you don't have to wait until late winter or early spring to see the newest in fashions, they are available any season of the year.

Letters to the Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Letters criticizing the editorial policy or commenting upon facts in the news columns, are equally welcome. Every writer must sign his name and address.

Editor the Star: Note the following copy of a letter I have written to Mrs. Marjorie Butler, Hope, Rt. 1: Mrs. Marjorie Butler, Route 1, Hope, Arkansas

Dear Mrs. Butler:

I noted with interest your letter to the Hope Star about our street conditions. We appreciate your kind comments on the maintenance program we have done this summer. This is the most extensive maintenance program that has ever been done during any one year. We are hoping for a like amount of work next year, which will be needed to keep our old paved streets from further deteriorating.

I quite agree with you on the need for paving 4th street. It is terrible to have conditions like that so close to the downtown section. There are several others of equal importance and we do need some thorough streets in the southside of town.

The only method of financing the paving of city streets is by assessing the cost to the property owners. This is usually done by the formation of an improvement district covering the area desiring the improvement. This takes the approval of two-thirds of all properties in the proposed district. With this approval, the work can be done and the cost assessed to the property owners. There have been some 35 or 40 paving improvement districts formed during the past years, and several sewer improvement districts. One of our problems now is that the type streets put in were expensive to begin with and create a maintenance problem that is hard to cope with.

We have done some street work where the property owners would get together and pay for the paving without all of the legal complications of an improvement district. Right now, the city will pave any street or block, or even a half-block, where the property owners will pay for the out-of-pocket costs, with nothing figured for machinery or operators. In this way the city is sharing some of the costs with the property owners. Most of our street money used in this way, however, is badly needed for maintenance work. Out of our street money we do gravel all the streets, and this together with our maintenance expense takes all the street money we can get hold of.

You will probably recall our recent attempt to pave the streets in the southeast section of the city. We had obtained funds to account for 60 percent of the cost, and the balance would have to be assessed to the property owners. This program included complete storm sewers, concrete curb and gutter and a heavy gravel base. This type of street would carry heavy traffic and would have required only a minimum of maintenance. Needless to say, the City Directors were sad when we had to turn back a $250,000 grant to the Federal Government because we were unable to get the consent of two-thirds of the properties necessary to form an improvement district, which was the only available method of financing the remaining 40 percent of the total cost.

Hope needs good streets and must have them if we are ever to have the kind of a community a lot of us would like. The street you mentioned, and several other very important streets have never had a majority of people willing to pave, even with the assistance the City will offer. There is no way we can force them to pave. Some residents in most of these areas have at one time or another tried to get their neighbors to form an improvement district so they could force the remaining owners. Several of these are

Modlin had been with James T. Gooch, Roy Neil Moorman and J. Hugh Lookadoo, all prominent Democrats.

Hoover Was for Self Reliance

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two contradictions he revealed in his most critical moment would be enough to make President Hoover a fascinating figure in American history.

He had seen and been a part of the government in World War II when, to survive and win, it went all-out in using its resources and controls.

But — as president in the depression he stopped far short of going all-out in meeting the crisis which threatened devastation worse than war.

He organized and distributed relief for millions overseas during and after World War I.

But — as President he would not give direct government help to the needy in the American depression. Why? The answer is in his philosophy.

He preached self-reliance, calling it individualism. He thought all men should have equal opportunity for happiness and fulfillment.

This, he felt, required a minimum of interference by the government or dependence on it.

It was the dominant view in the 19th century in which he grew up. It was not his own philosophy. He inherited it. There was a flaw in it which neither he nor many others ever seemed to perceive: All men, because of differences in birth and circumstances, do not have equal opportunities.

The view was rooted in 18th century France and England where men like Adam Smith felt government controls had become oppressive and were stifling the development of men and nations.

In his "Wealth of Nation" in 1776 Smith became the great spokesman for a minimum of government interference, then let-alone philosophy which swept the Western world.

Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson felt the same way. But Jefferson and Smith and others like them — from before Cicero up till now — were not completely realistic.

They had a mystical belief in a "natural law" — more important than any man-made law to the contrary — that men were not only equal but had a natural

Flood Having Problems With Housing

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — Curt Flood, star center fielder for the world champion St. Louis Cardinals baseball team announced his intention to move into a rented home today despite an alleged threat to stop him with a shotgun.

Flood, who said Monday that he was "upset, but I'm not angry," has the backing of Superior Court Judge Richard Arnason and the sheriff's office.

Flood, 25, charged in a court suit that he and his family were threatened after he signed a lease to rent a suburban home in Alamo, about 15 miles east of Oakland.

The suit, filed in Contra Costa County Superior Court, asked $10,000 in damages plus a restraining order allowing the family to move in. Judge Arnason granted the restraining order.

Defendants in the case are Constance A. Oliver of Zephyr Cove, Nev., owner of the home, and George C. Finn, who allegedly signed the lease after obtaining power of attorney from Mrs. Oliver.

The shotgun threat was made, according to the lawsuit, by Finn after he had signed the lease and later discovered that Flood is a Negro.

right to equal opportunity.

This assumption was so prevalent in their time it is hardly a coincidence that in the same year, 1776, Smith wrote his book and Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence.

Without their belief in "natural law" it seems impossible that Smith could have produced the "Wealth of Nations" or Jefferson the Declaration of Independence.

Nor was it odd in a practical way that Jefferson and Jackson wanted limited government. They were living in an early America, mostly agricultural, where people could be and often had to be self-dependent.

Theirs was a different America from this one, heavily industrialized, with most people in cities, and therefore interdependent.

The Jefferson-Jackson view held up to the Civil War and was paralleled in England where Liberals, anxious for freedom in all directions, warred against government involvement or intrusions.

Here the let-alone philosophy took a turn after the Civil War. With industrialization leaping ahead, business got a lot of help, directly or indirectly, from the government and the Supreme Court right up to the depression.

There were other voices, less predominant in the 19th century but infinitely more influential in this one, who talked government responsibility. They had to wait years to be vindicated. Hoover absorbed some of that, too.

It explains why, although he stopped far short of using all the government's resources in the depression, he went further to combat it than any depression president in history.

One example will show the long let-alone tradition in the White House before Hoover ever moved there.

In 1887, when Congress passed a bill to give direct government relief to drought-stricken farmers in Texas, President Cleveland vetoed it, saying: "though the people support the government, the government should not support the people."

Hoover did far more in the way of using government resources after the crash than Cleveland might have thought of, but it was still not enough.

In holding back on direct relief to the needy he was in the main American stream up till then.

"DEAR ABBY"

ONE WOMAN'S SECRET

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I, for one, agree with you 100 per cent when you say that a husband and wife should not tell everything just to clear their own consciences. First of all, it doesn't make the sin any less, so why hurt someone by confessing? A few years ago I became a restless housewife, and thought that an affair with another man was the answer to everything. So, after becoming involved, I became pregnant. That woke me up and I broke off with him without telling him why. Instead, I vowed to be a better wife and mother, and I worked toward that end and prayed daily for forgiveness. We now have a little daughter. My husband worships the ground she walks on, and she idolizes him. We have other children, but there seems to be a closeness between this little girl and her "Daddy" that does not exist between any of the others. So why break his heart by telling him that she is not his child? This secret is between God and me, and it will always be that way.

COULD NEVER TELL

Dear Abby: Of all the despicable people I will ever have to contend with, deliver me from the "kiss and tell" hypocrite. Confessions to clear the conscience? Baloney! Most confessions are motivated by a wilful desire to injure an innocent party, guilt transference, and the wish to boast.

Confession to God is good. Likewise, confession to a clergyman. Even to the bartender or the barber. But never to one who will be hurt to hear it. To have an affair is one thing. It is wrong, to be sure. But it is a human weakness and the flesh is weak. But to inflict pain on an innocent person, needlessly, is quite another. Christ has been known to forgive the adulterer. ("Go forth, and sin no more.") But Christ had no good message for the hypocrite.

Who am I? I'm the guy who once confessed to his wife his infidelity.

GUILTY

Dear Abby: Re confessing infidelity to one's mate: I agree with you wholeheartedly, Abby. It has been said, "The truth shall set you free." Rubbish! The truth has enslaved me. I would give everything I own never to have heard my wife's "confession." Sign me, A MAN IN PASADENA

Dear Abby: So now you are giving spiritual advice? Who are you to say that a husband and wife should not confess the sin of unfaithfulness to one another? When one has broken his vid Robinson, leased the $35,000 house to Flood at $290 a month for one year.

Mrs. Scofield took the lease to Finn. He signed it, she said, and later inquired of Mrs. Scofield whether the lessees were Caucasians.

Finn became "very enraged," according to Mrs. Scofield, when she told him that Flood was a Negro.

Finn, accompanied by another man — both armed with shotguns — parked his car across the home's driveway and threatened to shoot any Negro who tried to move in, the suit claimed.

Finn, who with his twin brother, Charles, made news a decade ago in a prolonged legal fight over a surplus airplane they bought, could not be reached for comment.

marriage vows, the only way to wipe the slate clean is to make a full confession to the spouse and ask forgiveness from the wronged one. If my mate has sinned against me, it is to me that he should confess, and it is my forgiveness he needs in order to cleanse his soul. I think you should print a retraction, Abby. Many people read your advice and take you seriously.

"SAVED" IN JOPLIN

Dear Saved: I still believe that a confession that will hurt an innocent party should be withheld. There are better ways to make restitution. Prayer, keeping a silent vow never to repeat the act, a special measure of kindness and consideration. The punishment is greater when the guilt is born in silence by the guilty one. There is nothing noble about cleansing one's conscience in the tears of another.

Statistical Leaders in SW Conference

DALLAS (AP)—Donny Anderson of Texas Tech held onto the rushing lead, Terry Southall of Baylor still was the No. 1 passer and then there was that familiar name of Lawrence Elkins that edged into the Southwest Conference football statistics.

Baylor's Elkins is the guy who set national records for passing last season. He caught 70.

This season he was in the shadow of a boy named Sonny Campbell of Texas Christian until Saturday when he gathered in seven throws against Texas A&M and went ahead in the conference for the first time this season.

He now leads with 25 catches for 509 yards and Campbell is second with 24 for 324. Although Elkins is behind last year's record pace—he had 34 catches at the same stage—his yardage is better by 34.

Elkins performs his magic despite the fact that two sophomores—Mike Marshall and Terry Southall—are doing the throwing and the other side puts two defensive men on him.

Anderson rolled up 86 yards against Southern Methodist to stay out front in rushing with 553 yards on 118 carries. Jim Fauer of Texas Christian made a mighty advance with his 164 yards against Clemson. He pulled into second place with 514 on 91 runs.

Ken Hatfield of Arkansas leads the punt returners with 242 yards on 10 runs and the kickoff returners with 212 yards on 10.

Ted Roberts of Texas Tech continues to lead the pass defenders with five interceptions.

Pesky to Coach for Pittsburgh

Pesky was named a coach Monday by the new manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Harry (The Hat) Walker.

Wilt About Ready to Resume Role

By DEREK SCHOEN Associated Press Sports Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, whose prolonged "stomach ache" has caused the San Francisco Warriors severe pain, is about ready to resume his role as pro basketball's most prolific scorer.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, who has led National Basketball Association scorers for the past five seasons, worked out with the Warriors Monday fr the first time since Sept. 21.

He was hospitalized for four weeks with what doctors finally diagnosed as an inflamed pancreas.

Team officials said today the 290-pound Chamberlain is on a controlled diet. He is avoiding fried food and carbonated beverages, they said, as well as cutting down on his daily intake of all foods.

Although the Warriors meet Baltimore tonight in Oakland, Calif., Chamberlain still won't be in the line-up. The towering center currently is on the injured reserve list, prohibiting him from appearances in the first five games.

But the man who holds nearly every NBA scoring record will be back in action Saturday when Baltimore visits San Francisco — and it won't be a bit too soon for the Warriors.

During the big man's absence, the defending Western Division champs lost their first four games.

Managers Talk About Baseball

By JOE BRADIS Associated Press Writer LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — What do general managers and other executives from 19 of 20 major league teams talk about behind closed doors in a secluded resort?

"Baseball naturally," said Joe L. Brown, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates who fostered the idea of such a session, the first ever held outside the regular league meetings and talks at World Series time.

The meeting opened Monday at the exclusive Rolling Rock Hunt Club outside this western Pennsylvania town where millionaires wine and dine, shoot pheasants and deer and hunt fox for pastime.

The meeting will continue through noon Wednesday.

"We just want to prop up our feet, relax and talk about things peculiar to our jobs," said Brown. "Three days isn't time enough, but it will have to do."

If the first session was any barometer, the general managers certainly did a lot of talking — a four-hour session and after a dinner break they burned the oil until about midnight.

What they talked about, no one knows since newsmen were not permitted to sit in on the meetings.

While the meetings were private and generally reported geared to such topics as bonus players and farm clubs, the question of Milwaukee moving its franchise to Atlanta was injected by a newsmen.

John McHale, general manager of the Braves, declined comment on the move. So did his colleague, Chub Feeney of the San Francisco Giants.

However, one source said there is no doubt in his mind that the National League owners will vote favorably for the shift.

Hogs Keep 4th Spot in Nat'l Football Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Ohio State would like nothing better than to celebrate the 10th anniversary of its last national football championship by winning the title again.

Now past the halfway point in quest of that honor last achieved in 1954, the unbeaten Buckeyes are at the top of The Associated Press major college rankings for the second straight week.

Ohio State, with five victories, received 32 of the 47 first-place votes and a total of 430 points as the Top Ten remained fairly static. The only changes from last week's standings were made in the lower four teams.

Second-ranked Notre Dame and third-ranked Alabama provided the Buckeyes with their only real opposition for the top spot, but the two undefeated teams had a tighter battle between themselves.

Alabama, 6-0, earned eight first-place votes to Notre Dame's six but trailed the Irish, 5-0, in over-all points 387-390.

Arkansas, 6-0, received the other vote for the top spot and had 311 points for fourth place. Nebraska, 6-0, retained fifth place with 242 points while Texas, 5-1, held sixth with 195.

Two teams were dropped from the Top Ten after losing last Saturday. Syracuse, eight last week, was belted by Oregon State 31-13, and Virginia Tech defeated Florida State, 10th last week, 20-11.

The newcomers are Oregon, No. 7, and Georgia Tech, No. 8. The West Coast team blanked Washington 7-0 for its sixth straight victory while the independent Yellow Jackets nipped Tulane 7-6 for its sixth in a row.

Louisiana State, held to a 3-3 tie by Tennessee, fell from seventh to ninth, and Florida, 17-14 losers to Alabama, slid from ninth to 10th.

Davidson Best Passer in AFL

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton Davidson, Oakland's second string quarterback until a couple of weeks ago, is the American Football League's No. 1 passer today.

Latest AFL statistics show Davidson, a nine-year pro veteran, on top in the league's passing efficiency ratings after a five-touchdown, 419-yard binge in last Sunday's 40-7 victory over Denver — the Raiders' first of the season.

The 30-year-old signal-caller, who considered retiring after losing his starting job to Tom Flores last year, completed 25 of 34 tosses and set a club record for passing yardage. His career-high performance shot him past Kansas City's Len Dawson in league passing figures.

Davidson received 52 of a possible 60 efficiency points, 48 for Dawson and 41 for John Hadl of San Diego.

Porks Look at Films of Texas A&M

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles sent his defensive unit to watch films of Texas A&M's offense Monday, after saying the Aggies had given away a touchdown in each game by a miscue.

Broyles pointed out that Texas A&M had lost four of their games by only four points and indicated the points they gave away through such things as a blocked kick, fumble or intercepted pass.

Arkansas meets Texas A&M Saturday at College Station, Tex.

The Razorbacks worked out in light rain for about 45 minutes in sweat clothes.

End Jerry Lamb, who suffered a pulled calf muscle during the Texas game, worked out briefly but Broyles said it was still questionable whether Lamb would see action Saturday.

"We don't know just when is the proper time to test him," Broyles said. Lamb missed action Saturday, when Arkansas defeated Wichita 17-0.

Broyles Fears Average Law Will Get Hogs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas wonders if there might not be a change in Texas A&M's football fortunes since the law of averages is working overtime against it.

The headman of the Southwest Conference's only undefeated, untied team pointed to the fact that of the six games lost by the Aggies, the margin was an average of only four points in four of them.

And he blamed blocked kicks, fumbles and intercepted passes for the trouble—the Aggies just plain gave those four points away.

So he's worrying because the breaks may be for instead of against the Aggies Saturday night when his Razorbacks meet Texas A&M at College Station in the conference's big game of the week.

The Aggies certainly will be in shape to take advantage of any breaks since they will be virtually at full strength with the return to action of defensive line stalwarts Ronny Moore and Ray Gene Hinz.

On the other hand, Arkansas has a top man on the doubtful list. He's talented wingman Jerry Lamb, who pulled a calf muscle in the Texas game and missed last week's contest with Wichita. He may not be able to play against A&M either.

Baylor had an injury list as long as an arm as the Bears prepared to meet Texas Christian at Fort Worth Saturday. But it was almost like that last week when the Bears beat the Aggies 20-16.

Five players missed practice Monday, including flanker Lawrence Elkins, the great pass-receiver, who has a shoulder hurt.

Texas Christian was cheered with the return of wingback Bobby Sanders, guard Billy Snow and tackle Preston Phillips and the Frogs should be close to full strength Saturday.

Texas could more than match Baylor's injury list and Coach Darrell Royal was worrying himself sick because he said "we'll have to scramble every weekend to win—we'll have to fight for our lives."

He noted that Southern Methodist, Texas' foe at Austin Saturday, was mighty hard to score on.

The toughest loss is halfback Phil Harris. "People don't realize how our timing is hurt when you lose a guy like Harris," Royal moaned.

Coach Hayden Fry of Southern Methodist found no new injuries from the game with Texas last week but he wasn't optimistic over his chances against Texas. "Texas still is No. 1 as far as I'm concerned," said Fry.

Texas Tech plays Rice at Houston and Coach J. T. King of the Red Raiders said "it looks like Rice has really jelled." He expressed most concern over the Rice linebacking strength. "It'll be tough to hang onto the Southwest Conference's rushing lead," he warned his team.

Coach Jess Neely of Rice was not talking like a losing coach. He was quite pleased with the showing of his team against Texas although the Owls were beaten 6-3.

And he found that the Owls would be in top shape for Saturday's battle with Tech. The only injury was a sprained ankle by quarterback Walt McReynolds but trainer Eddie Wojcicki said it was not severe. McReynolds will stay out of rough work all week, however.

Grid Injury Proves Fatal

METHUEN, Mass. (AP) — John Orcutt, 14, an eighth grader at Lowell's Edith Nurse Rogers Junior High School, died Monday after being injured in an interscholastic football game.

Orcutt was injured while making a tackle in the second period of a game with a Methuen team. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Bon Secours Hospital.

Lincoln at Liston's plush white cliffs resort training camp Monday. Fresh sea breezes blow across this mayhem manor just a few miles from where the pilgrims—they never got past the amateurs—landed.

"Sonny's ready, mentally and physically," Night Train said. "He's going to knock Clay out real quick—the first time he catches him good in a corner."

"In the ring you can run so far and then the guy's going to catch you. Clay was looking for a way out in the fifth round the last time, saying 'My eyes, my eyes.'"

"I've been boxing for years. There's never been a man I couldn't tie up. But I can't do anything with Sonny. He's too strong."

Results in Little Loop Football

By RALPH ROUNTON Last Saturday in Little Loop football play the Blues and Golds fought to a 7-all deadlock. The Blues used a double reverse to tally first and Purtle ran the point.

In the final quarter Tommy Miller went back to punt and for the second time in two games, couldn't kick so he raced 31 yards for the TD. Calhoun tied it by running the point.

In the second game the Whites ran over the hopeless Reds 20-0. The first score came in the second period when Danny Putman tossed to Ronnie Massanelli for 13 yards and the TD. The PAT was blocked.

Putman tossed to Jerry Pruden, a 35 yarder, for the second score and Massanelli threw to Pruden for the point. The final tally came when Putman again passed to Steve Harris, the play covering 26 yards. Massanelli ran the point across.

Two Tied for Tourney Lead

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Two golfers, one from San Francisco and the other from Chicago, turned in identical 72 cards Monday to lead the amateur qualifiers for the Almaden Open Tournament starting here Thursday.

Late entries in the pro ranks for the $25,000 contest included Bob Rossburg, 1955 PGA champion. The 72-hole tournament will include 135 professionals, with a pro-amateur round scheduled for Wednesday.

Caveness, Nobis Candidates for All American

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF Associated Press Sports Writer DALLAS (AP) — Two mighty linebackers — Tommy Nobis of Texas and Ronnie Caveness of Arkansas — are the Southwest Conference's leading contenders for the All-American college football team.

Both got the top votes of the regional committee in the first canvass of the season.

Nobis and Caveness each weigh 215 pounds and each is noted for his ferocious tackling and quickness in covering his territory.

Nobis plays offensive guard also and stands out with his blocking. Caveness plays offense only occasionally but is known to be capable of doing a top job there if necessary.

Each counts his tackles in a game by the dozen.

Lawrence Elkins, the great Baylor pass-receiver: Ernie Koy, the kicking-running tailback of Texas; Donny Anderson, Texas Tech's versatile halfback, and Malcolm Walker, the giant center and linebacker of Rice are others on all the check lists of the committee.

Bill Van Fleet of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram cited the fact that Elkins not only is the conference's ace pass-receiver but he plays safety quite efficiently for the Bears.

Lou Maysel of the Austin American noted that Nobis and Caveness had "great noses for the ball." He also said Koy's value was several fold, including great kicking that wins ball games, and able to even come up with a clutch pass.

Orville Henry of the Arkansas Gazette said Caveness starred every Saturday and he also praised the work of end Jerry Lamb of Arkansas, who was as valuable as a decoy as a pass-receiver.

Dave Campbell of the Waco News-Tribune liked Nobis particularly because he was a two-way player in an era of two-plateau and was good at both. Campbell also thought Caveness was outstanding as a linebacker. "And Koy figures out a way to beat people almost every week," observed Campbell.

Box Vex of KRLD-TV, Dallas, ranked Nobis and Caveness as the top All-American prospects but he also included Ken Hatfield, Arkansas' mighty punt and kickoff returner, in his list of outstanding players.

Mickey Herskowitz of the Houston Post ranked Caveness and Nobis at the top and listed Koy, Walker, Elkins and Anderson in that order.

Says Jackson Might Be a Great Player

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I think we've got the greatest. You're gonna be surprised. He's got (Boston Celtics' Bill) Russell's timing and he's got a heck of a shot and he's tough."

That's the opinion of Ike Richman, owner of the Philadelphia 76ers of the National Basketball Association. Richman may be patting himself on the back a bit, after signing Lucious Jackson, 6-foot-9 Pan American University and U.S. Olympic team star, to a 76ers contract Monday. But he's apparently put his money where his mouth is.

Contract terms with Jackson, the 76ers' No. 1 draft choice, were not announced, but Richman hinted it cost him the price of maybe a thousand kimonos.

"We are going to go all the way with him," said Richman, with unqualified praise for the 240-pounder from San Marcos, Tex.

"In the last game with Russia, there was no question he was the outstanding player on the floor. He took that Russian 7-foot-2 and made him look like

Legal Issues in Braves' Moving Bid

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The legal wheeling and dealing headed for another round today in the Milwaukee Braves' bid to move to Atlanta.

The Braves averted a Circuit Court showdown scheduled for today by asking Monday that the federal court take jurisdiction in the county's attempt to force the club to remain in Milwaukee and fulfill a contract which runs through 1965.

Although the Circuit Court hearing was canceled, a temporary order restraining the Braves from moving was continued. The order issued by Judge Ronald Drechsler prevented the club from seeking National League approval of a franchise transfer at a meeting in New York last week.

The Braves said in their federal court petition that "diversity of citizenship" was cause for moving the case out of the state courts. The club is a Delaware corporation with principal offices in Chicago.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert E. Tahan set Nov. 5 for a hearing. He said he would determine whether Wisconsin or Illinois is the Braves' principal place of business and whether six Wisconsin directors who oppose the club's move are proper parties in the action.

In another development Monday, Mayor Henry Maier and representatives of several other cities issued a statement urging that a definite blueprint be drawn for major league expansion.

The statement also proposed banning transfer of a franchise unless a home community fails to support the team as measured by a formula that would include the investment return to the club.

The statement added that organized baseball should reaffirm its belief in the sanctity of contracts and local ownership should be given the first option on any sale.

Maier said the "statement of principles" will be sent to mayors of other large cities in the nation and a committee then will be named to meet with baseball leaders.

Amendment Aimed to Fill Industry Gap

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of eight articles on proposed constitutional amendments which will be on the Nov. 3 ballot.)

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Boosters of industrial development in Arkansas hailed Act 9 on 1960 as the ultimate weapon in industrial financing. They said it made the state's arsenal complete.

But a gap has shown up in the last few years and proposed Amendment 52 is the means of filling it.

Act 9 is excellent for financing large industries with an excellent credit rating. Amendment 49, adopted in 1958, takes care of smaller industries in areas with a tax base that will provide an adequate bond issue on the five-mill tax limit imposed by the amendment.

But what about the area flitting with a plant too small to qualify for Act 9 bonds and too large for adequate financing under Amendment 9?

Amendment 52 would permit the legislature to set up an industrial financing district, including portions of two or more counties to broaden the tax base so it will support a large enough bond issue.

It does the same thing for hospitals which now must be run by one county with many counties too small to support a hospital without help. The amendment also increases the maximum tax which can be levied for hospital bonds from five to six mills.

The amendment has another feature for counties where political power may be divided between two or more areas. An industrial or hospital district can be set up with an area of a county, removing the necessity for a county-wide vote on a bond proposal. Some bond issues, especially those for hospitals, have been defeated because the hospital would benefit only one section of a county and residents of other areas didn't want to pay for it.

Under Amendment 52, the tax would be collected only in that section of the county which voted for it.

The amendment was written by Woodruff County Rep. Jack Oakes, chairman of the Arkansas Economic Expansion Study Commission and a long-time booster of industrial development.

Oakes tried unsuccessfully to get the 1961 legislature to refer the amendment to the ballot. He lost the fight, but he came right back and got legislative approval in 1963.

There is no apparent opposition to Amendment 52.

when we're an hour in black and white, have been better than last season, when we had 90 minutes in color.

"Still, you've got to get the ratings. If we don't come up with them, ABC is liable to say 'This is it' after we do the next six shows."

Somehow television wouldn't seem the same without good old "Wagon Train," which has weathered death — Ward Bond, original wagonmaster; defection — Robert Horton, original scout; and uncounted perils, including periodic Indian attacks.

There's a feeling in television circles that if only the Train can make it over the next hill, it might go on forever. Industry observers opine that the Western is due for a rebirth following this season's inundation of situation comedies.

Unlike some television cowpokes who could hardly wait to get out of the sagebrush, Bob Fuller likes it where he is. He's not exactly a newcomer to the field, having gone for four years in "Laramie" into "Wagon Train" last season with only a 30-day breather.

"I like Westerns; I like the people I work with and I like working outdoors," said Fuller, who spends every weekend camping with his wife and 6-month-old son.

What would he like to do if "Wagon Train" does vanish into the sunset?

"Another Western series," he replied.

Charge Filed on Nursing Home Man

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Prosecutor Norman Harkey said Saturday he had filed a charge in Jackson Circuit Court at Newport against a nursing home operator in connection with an election irregularity.

Harkey said E. E. Kinnerson, a Negro who operates the G.P.W. rest home, was charged in connection with a ballot cast for a dead woman in the July

Pennsylvania Parties Are Divided

By HARRY W. BALL

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Both of Pennsylvania's candidates for the U.S. Senate are campaigning against a background of division in their own state parties.

Republican Sen. Hugh Scott, seeking a second term, was a strong supporter of Gov. William W. Scranton for the presidential nomination won at San Francisco by Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Scott has endorsed Goldwater, but without enthusiasm, and has conducted his campaign independently from that of the national ticket.

His opponent, Miss Genevieve Blatt, captured the Democratic nomination as an independent after the state organization passed her by in favor of State Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno.

Miss Blatt won the primary by a margin of 491 votes of more than a million cast. Musmanno fought the verdict through the courts until early this month when the U.S. Supreme Court rejected his plea to count some 5,624 Philadelphia votes.

A political realist and graduate cum laude of the David Lawrence school of Pittsburgh politics, Miss Blatt did not wait for Musmanno to exhaust his legal remedies. She entered the campaign long before the courts had their final say.

She needed Scott for disassociating his campaign from that of Goldwater and the GOP vice-presidential candidate, Rep. William J. Miller.

Scott said Miss Blatt belittled bills which he had piloted through the Senate as "not important."

Once Miss Blatt dropped a broad hint that Scott should be considered a "carpetbagger" because he was born in Virginia.

The senator retorted by citing a record in Pennsylvania public life that dates back to 1926 and includes eight terms in Congress before his election to the Senate in 1958.

That's the way the campaign has been going. By Pennsylvania standards, it is still some what mild.

The candidates have been going everywhere, seeing the proper people, being photographed in the right places.

Scott shared a fund-raising program at Gettysburg with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

President Johnson, appearing at Harrisburg's state farm show arena — draped an arm affectionately about Miss Blatt's shoulder and counseled the multitude to send her to the Senate.

Partisan claims aside, the best independent estimates in Harrisburg figure the contest to be close.

Miss Blatt is a friendly, witty woman in her mid-50s — her exact age is a well-kept secret — who has dedicated her life to politics and public office.

Past elections have demonstrated her ability to win friends

Democratic primary.

The charge was filed after an investigation requested by the Jackson County Democratic Central Committee. Harkey said.

He said the vote was cast in the name of a woman who died last February. The information filed by Harkey said the woman had been a patient in the nursing home.

Life in Arkansas

Jonesboro merchant Dick Falk has gotten back $5 which he earned, and lost, as a boy.

"They were paving Main Street in the summer of 1918," he recalls, "and I had a soda pop stand. That's how I made the $5."

Last week Vernon Findley of Bono was buying some of the salvage material from the old Falk homestead which had been torn down. He spotted a small book that looked as if it might be valuable.

Inside was a $5 Liberty Bond stamp. It had the name John Richard Falk in it.

Falk has written to federal officials to determine the value of the stamp.

There's a bit of color controversy these days in Conway — over fire plugs.

Fire Chief Wilson Drews has had 200 of the city's 260 fire plugs painted cerise, a dull cherry-like color. The color is easily distinguished, since it matches almost nothing.

"My wife doesn't like it either," said Drews after hearing several comments on the paint.

He added, "The plugs are not pretty at all until they're needed. Then they are beautiful."

Religious Sect Coming to America

By ROBERT HEARD

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two hundred years ago in central Russia a group of farmers defied the Russian Orthodox Church by drinking milk whenever they pleased, even on holy days. Despised and persecuted, they were called Molokans — milk-drinkers.

Two hundred years later in Southern California, their descendants wear the Molokan name like a badge of honor and likewise defy many standards of the society in which they live.

One of them, John E. Shubin, 38, recently won the right not to have his long-bearded face photographed for his driver's license, on the ground that image-making violated his religious beliefs.

A week later, eight Molokan families sailed for Australia in search of a better place to live than Los Angeles, a sunshine mecca to millions but sinful to most Molokans.

Twenty more families are thinking about making the voyage to Australia next month.

The sect is more fully known as the Russian Molokan Christian Holy Spiritual Jumpers. They became jumpers after 1833 when "the holy spirit touched the hearts of the spiritual Christians," according to a Church document.

The Molokans say this is the same spirit that was bestowed upon the Apostles of Jesus, and when it moves them at church rituals, they jump.

Worship by jumping only increased their persecution at the hands of the Czarist government and the Orthodox Church. The Molokans knew they had to get out of Russia. But where should they go?

Fortunately the practice of jumping, which was responsible for stirring persecution to a greater frenzy, also provided the means to learn where God wanted them to go.

According to their belief, a jumping Molokan can prophesy. The prophets said they should and influence supporters of her own sex — no mean accomplishment for a woman in politics.

Scott is a campaign-hardened pro, former national Republican chairman, who manages an air of confidence despite the Democratic registration margin and the dissension in his own party.

Oklahomans Now Switch to Politics

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA. (AP) — Once upon a time, Oklahomans spent each autumn talking about football. This year it's different.

Oklahoma's football fortunes are sagging — the Sooners lost to Texas again — and conversation now skims over tragedies and centers instead on politics.

Republican Bud Wilkinson, former University of Oklahoma football coach, is running against Democrat Fred Harris, a 33-year-old state senator, in a nip-and-tuck general election campaign for U.S. Senate.

Statewide polls show the race is close. Veteran observers say interest in the Wilkinson-Harris match is so intense the total vote on the Senate race could top that on the presidential race.

This is the first plunge into politics for Wilkinson, who gained national fame during his 17 years as football coach and while serving three years as head of the President's Council on Physical Fitness. Harris has served eight years in the state Senate and ran unsuccessfully for governor two years ago.

The winner of the Nov. 3 election will serve until January 1967, completing the six-year term to which Democrat Sen. Robert S. Kerr was elected in 1960.

Kerr died on Jan. 1, 1963, and a few days later Democrat J. Howard Edmondson resigned as Oklahoma governor and was appointed to fill the vacancy until the next general election.

Harris defeated Edmondson in a primary election runoff last spring while Wilkinson swamped two Republican opponents to win the GOP nomination without a runoff.

Both Wilkinson and Harris have aligned themselves with their party's presidential ticket.

When Sen. Barry Goldwater carried his campaign to Oklahoma, a beaming Wilkinson was on hand to introduce and praise the nominee at a Tulsa rally.

Goldwater in turn plugged for Wilkinson's election. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower also will visit the state in Wilkinson's behalf.

Harris calls in each of his speeches for the election of President Johnson and his roadside billboards proclaim: "Harris-LBJ, Democratic all the way."

When on a recent "nonpolitical" visit to Oklahoma, Johnson said "Send me Fred Harris and we'll bring home the bacon and tack the coonskin to the wall." He added: "Fred and I will charge hell with a bucket of water."

Both Wilkinson and Harris shun liberal or conservative labels, but Wilkinson clearly is the more conservative of the two, calling for an end "of the steady drift to more and more big government control over our lives."

At the start of his campaign, Harris said "I will run neither as a liberal nor a conservative. I will campaign on good old Oklahoma common sense."

Wilkinson, 48 and a native of Minnesota, changed his political affiliation from Democrat to Republican before entering the Senate race.

Wilkinson looks more like an English professor — he holds a master's degree in English education — than the nation's top college football coach. Tall and trim, he has silver gray hair and dresses in conservative gray or blue suits.

Harris, born and reared on a southern Oklahoma farm, worked his way through the University of Oklahoma as a printer for the campus paper. He obtained degrees in government, history and law and earned a Phi Beta Kappa key.

A stocky 185-pounder, Harris parts his thick black hair down the middle and is a conservative dresser.

They are waging surprisingly similar campaigns — both leaning heavily on personal contact.

The candidates are being aided in campaign chores by their wives, Myra Wilkinson and Ladonna Harris. The Wilkinsons have two sons, one in medical school and the other studying for the ministry. Ladonna Harris and the three Harris children, ages 2, 6 and 14, are enrolled members of the Comanche Indian tribe.

During the campaign, Harris has denounced Goldwater while Wilkinson has termed Democratic vice-presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey "the acting stooge."

Wilkinson's sharpest attacks have been directed at Harris' attendance record in the state Senate, where Wilkinson said he ranked 41st of 44 senators last come to this country, which they did in the early 1900s, settling principally in the Los Angeles area. But the prophets also told them the United States would not be the final home of the faithful.

SIDE GLANCES

By Gil Fox

"Something expensive, or is it the thought that counts?"

session in answering roll call votes.

"Elect me and I'll put Oklahoma first, not 41st," Wilkinson often says. Harris replies that Wilkinson is attempting "to divert attention from the fact he has a total and life-long absenteeism from participation in public affairs."

In stressing his experience in politics and government, Harris says: "A member of the Senate, like a doctor or coach, ought to be prepared for the job."

He sometimes adds that University of Oklahoma regents, when searching for Wilkinson's successor, didn't consider hiring a politician as coach.

Wilkinson devotes much of his campaign to wooing Democratic voters, since Democrats outnumber Republicans in Oklahoma about 4-1 — a million Democrats, 250,000 Republicans.

Harris' campaign is being coordinated by state Democratic headquarters and some of his top aides were part of the powerful political organization built by Kerr.

Wilkinson's campaign is not tied in with the state GOP organization. But other Republican candidates are seeking to identify themselves with the former coach.

Jobs Outstrip the Gain in Working Age

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Jobs have been increasing much faster than government statistics might indicate. And contrary to the widely held view that jobs are disappearing, the U.S. economy has been producing new ones at a rate that outstrips the gain in the working age population.

This challenge to the government statistics on the percentage of the labor force that can't find work is made by the economists of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, Mo.

The official unemployment rate has held stubbornly above 5 per cent, except for one month, for several years. This has been dubbed one of the most serious shortcomings of an otherwise largely prosperous economy.

The bank contends that the economy's job-producing achievement has been downgraded because the wrong basis of comparison is used.

The government estimate of employment, unemployment, and the rate of joblessness in the labor force is based on a monthly survey of 35,000 households by the Department of Labor. The labor force thus estimated is a projection of the sum of those with jobs and those who say they want jobs. It varies widely from month to month as people decide they do or don't want work.

The bank economists hold that other data collected by the department is more accurate and a much better indicator of short-run employment developments. This is the payroll employment reported each month by employers.

Using the actual payrolls, the economists find that employment has been rising faster and higher than the other — or total employment — data indicates. And in relation to the population growth in the working ages, the increase in jobs has been marked.

So far this year payroll employment has increased at an annual rate of about 3.1 per cent. The 20 to 64 age group has been increasing at a 1.2 per cent clip, and the 18 to 64 group at 1.4 per cent.

Both the total employment and the payroll employment data of the Labor Department have shown gains since the economy started upward early in 1961.

But the bank points out that the commonly used total employment figure has risen during 3½ years at an annual rate of 1.7 per cent.

This has kept the unemployment percentage of the labor force disturbingly high.

The payroll employment data, however, shows a 2.9 per cent annual gain. And since the first of the year the increase has averaged 3.1 per cent. This gives the economy far better marks for creating jobs, despite automation, ends obsolescence, and the school drop-out problem.

Eureka Springs, Ark,---Where Earth Is Close to the Sky

— Contax photos, Alex. H. Washburn

Eureka Only 300 Miles From Hope

Your editor had been through Eureka Springs twice in other years, always with the resolve to go back there one day and really see the town—and last week he did it, taking L. Carter Johnson along on a three-day trip.

We left Hope at 7:10 Thursday morning, October 22, and returned Saturday night. The northern trip was made by way of Hot Springs, Russellville, Harrison, and then 40 miles west into Eureka.

We came home by what looks on the map to be the direct route—Huntsville, Ozark, Booneville, Danville, Mt. Ida and Nashville. But we have news for you—there's virtually no difference between the two routes in either mileage or scenery. From here to Eureka Springs by way of Harrison is 280 miles—and by way of Huntsville, Ozark and Booneville 282 miles. And 2,000-foot elevations are commonplace on both routes.

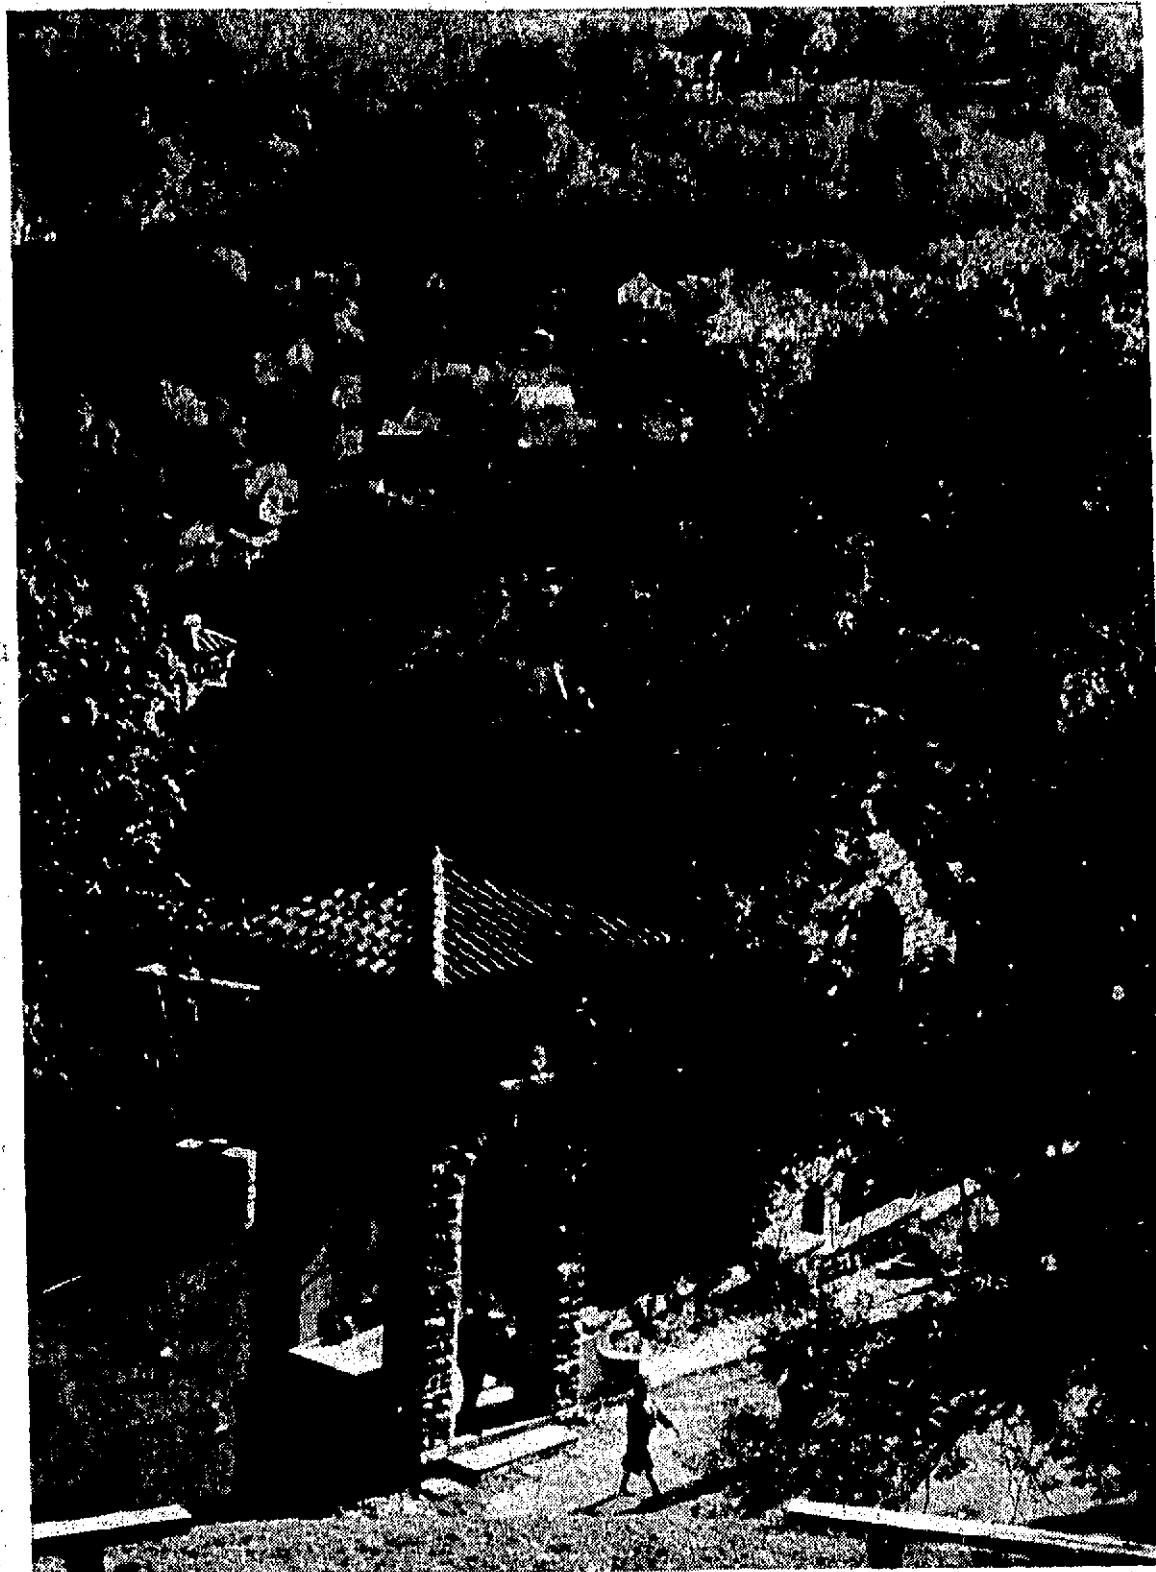

Mr. Johnson and the editor arrived in Eureka at 3:20 Thursday afternoon only to discover that the 17th Ozark Folk Festival parade had just ended, which accounted for the town being jam-packed—but left us full of exasperation. Apparently the Eureka publicity chiefs depended on the Little Rock papers for publicity, but not much of the pews got down our way—and in Eureka itself you couldn't find a Little Rock paper.

Our primary purpose in making the trip was to make color photographs of the Autumn foliage, and these were successful, but Hope Star's present press isn't capable of handling color, so all we have on this page are the prints from the black-and-white camera.

EUREKA'S FAMED CRESCENT HOTEL, ON TOP OF the town at 1,450 feet, framed by the belfry arch of a down-slope church. Built in 1886, the hotel once was converted to a girls' school, but in modern times has become a successful vacation house.

THIS IS A DOWN-SLOPE PICTURE OF the church which you enter through the belfry,

LIKE HOLLYWOOD, EUREKA IS FULL OF ILLUSIONS. This rail fence backed by Autumn foliage appears to be nestled in the heart of a forest — actually the picture was taken from pavement on the Crescent hotel grounds.

FOLK DANCING IN BASIN PARK — while a country band performs in a band-shell hewn out of a cliff.

OPPOSITE BASIN PARK IS THE BASIN PARK HOTEL. Eureka's only famous hotel, in the heart of the cliff hanging business district.

HERE IS EUREKA'S SPLIT-LEVEL LIVING, WITH a pedestrian bridge giving access to the second floor of a hotel.
